Customer Reviews

I was given a copy to review. This book was okay. It had so many things that were unrealistic though. Who manages to have two full time employees plus part time at a diner that NO ONE goes to? This was repeatedly mentioned how how? That is just one of my gripes. This guy loves this girl doesn't want to be without her, yet as soon as he gets to the lower 48 he basically ghosts her? She keeps her virginity because "her body knows it should belong to him" (not exact quote;) and like the second he waltzes back into town because HE HAS TOO not because he wants to she gives it up? She sees what she thinks is his truck, dives behind a counter to avoid him, yet goes to the bar which she never does and sleeps with him? He all of a sudden realizes that she is amazing and yet one old dude makes a comment and she ditches her to go south again? She decides to become a party girl after collapsing in grief when he leaves? He comes back and says I love you and BOOM they are getting married?

I read this a week ago yet have had this review in my drafts for most of that time as I've really struggled with how to rate it. I like Mia Ford, she's a reliable easy author where the INSTA everything is extreme and the chemistry is off the charts. However as this was a second chance romance there was a lot more back story and complexity around the characters. Fay has been in love with Neil since they were kids. They dated in high school and shared an intense relationship for a couple so young, however Neil left for college and stopped calling or writing. His family was loaded and he was expected to follow in his father's footsteps. Unexpectedly his father dies so Neil returns to the small hometown to take care of things. He runs into Fay who is still working in the local diner and escaping with her romance reads... however he is far from nice... in fact he is a hard hero to like. Hence the struggle with the rating... Ultimately, there is HEA and he comes around... but really I was Team Fay most of this read... and wanted to give Neil a kick up the butt!!!! I am a verified purchaser in Australia

Second chance small town romance - Bring it up.. Add to that the childhood love - hell yeah!! Fay and Neil were lovers since their teens but Neil left his small-town for City and broke Fay's heart on the way.. After 9 years, when he is just graduated, his father's sudden death brings him back to the one place he hates so much.. When he runs into Fay he was more surprised by how coolly she acts about being ditched.. He tries and makes up with her again but both of them were aware that his time there was anything but permanent.. As they get closer, older feelings resurface and Neil gets more scared.. He asks Fay to leave the town too but Fay refuses outright saying that she would never leave home.. Again History repeats itself when Neil flees to City and Fay is left heartbroken.. How they come to terms with their conflict of interest and claim their love is the rest of the story.. Asheville is a beautiful town and I loved all the people of it.. Fay and Courtney who were two opposites like day and night made for the best friends and Courtney's mouth definitely requires some kind of filter.. And Neil was all prim and kind of arrogant that until I saw him through Fay's eyes I didn't realize how cute he is.. I was touched by her love for him all those years ago and even now giving it without any expectations though she knew her heart would be broken again.. Neil who realises his mistake and makes ultimate sacrifice to be with the love of his life is the damn sweetest thing!! Great read with real great chemistry!!! I'm voluntarily reviewing the book in exchange for an

ARC..

Fay is all about her home town life. She lives in the house she grew up in. She has worked at the same diner since high school. She has had the same best friend for as long as she can remember. She loves her romance novels. The only thing that changed, her high school boyfriend left her behind when he ditched their small town for bigger and better things and she refused to go with him. Neil couldn't get out of that small Alaskan town fast enough. He left when he was 18, right after high school. He has just finished law school, and is on his way to make a name for himself. Then his father passes away suddenly, and he is forced to go back home to settle his affairs. He didn't count on seeing Fay again, and still feeling all of those old feelings from all of those years ago. Has too much time passed? Has the hurt lessened or been forgotten? Can they possibly move on? This is a sweet and romantic second chance story that will completely captivate you from beginning to end. The story is well written with good, sound characters you can't help but love. I am voluntarily reviewing an ARC of this book. This is my honest opinion.

I received this book as part of an ARC to read and give my review. This was my first book I read with these two authors together and I enjoyed reading this that I can't wait to read more of what they have written together. Fay is from Ashville and works in a diner since she was young. She was in love with her high school sweetheart Neil but he just didn't like living in Ashville anymore and he didn't want to be in a relationship it just wasn't for him. Neil up and moved to Alaska to get away from Ashville and start his own journey in life no commitments to anyone. When Neil's dad dies he has to come back to Ashville and he goes to the little diner in town and sees Fay who is still working there since before he left. Fay is shocked and still hurting for the fact she was in love with Neil and he just upped and left. Fay still being a virgin and hasn't had a relationship since Neil has left. Will Neil and Fay hook up again and become intimate? Fay still holds onto to the hurt will she let it go and stay with Neil and give him a chance? Read this book to find out you will not be disappointed one bit. I enjoyed this read and you will too. I highly recommend this one!
