Bordeaux & Dordogne Travel Guide - Attractions, Eating, Drinking, Shopping & Places To Stay

Synopsis

Bordeaux evokes rich sensations with many. At the heart of the region is Bordeaux, the city that wine built. It's a place that reflects its elegant inheritance through its art, architecture and love of the good things in life. The fine wines of Bordeaux have exerted an important influence on the region's culinary excellence and there is a touch of eternity to Bordeaux's reputation. The Romans introduced winemaking to the region and, two thousand years later, Bordeaux continues to cultivate some of the best wines in the world. The Dordogne region combines the best of rural France with a passion for good food and wine, the romantic legacy of medieval castles and an abundance of pretty villages. Its gentle hills and dark fairy-tale forests offer a relaxing escape from the rush of modern life. For food lovers, the Dordogne is home to the black truffle as well as to the controversial foie gras. Other regional favourites include walnuts, chestnuts and wild mushrooms. The city of Bergerac is visited by gourmands from around the world.

Customer Reviews

This book is very short, mostly about wine, and though not bad in its discussion of the vineyards of the Bordeaux area, it has very little other information for travelers to this part of France. Look elsewhere for a good guide book. I recommend "The Rough Guide to Dordogne & The Lot."

Helpful but not the be all. We did purchase a wonderful set of hand crafted knives as suggested in the shopping section. A good regional map with places mentioned in the book being highlighted would have been great...

Great book! The information it provides seems very up to date and useful. I can't wait to put it to use next month.

Reasonable book but a little light on information. However, it does give an overview of the area.

Good guide, with some info that Frommer's didn't pick up. Make no mistake, don't use this as your ONLY guidebook; you're still going to need Frommer's, but this is a great supplement!

waste of paper trying to sell restaurants, hotels etc this should be free
