Synopsis

This romantic story of hope, chance, and change from the author of The Statistical Probability of Love at First Sight is one Jenny Han says is filled with all of her "favorite things," Morgan Matson calls it "something wonderful" and Stephanie Perkins says it "is rich with the intensity of real love." Alice doesn't believe in luck—at least, not the good kind. But she does believe in love, and for some time now, she's been pining for her best friend, Teddy. On his eighteenth birthday just when it seems they might be on the brink of something she buys him a lottery ticket on a lark. To their astonishment, he wins $140 million, and in an instant, everything changes. At first, it seems like a dream come true, especially since the two of them are no strangers to misfortune. As a kid, Alice won the worst kind of lottery possible when her parents died just over a year apart from each other. And Teddy's father abandoned his family not long after that, leaving them to grapple with his gambling debts. Through it all, Teddy and Alice have leaned on each other. But now, as they negotiate the ripple effects of Teddy's newfound wealth, a gulf opens between them. And soon, the money starts to feel like more of a curse than a windfall. As they try to find their way back to each other, Alice learns more about herself than she ever could have imagined . . . and about the unexpected ways in which luck and love sometimes intersect.

Customer Reviews

"Smith's dynamic characters and their complex struggles...will keep readers invested."

•Publishers Weekly"Smith weaves a poignant tale of teens coping with loss and change as they balance on the verge of adulthood...Fans of Morgan Matson's and Deb

Caletti's books will want to curl up with a box of tissues as they fall under Smith's storytelling spell." •School Library Journal "[T]his compelling read, gracefully told, raises issues seldom explored in popular fiction. How can we rationalize life's inequalities? What do we owe, and to whom, when blessed with good fortune? Smart and entertaining, as to be expected from Smith." •Kirkus Reviews"Smith taps into the relatable feelings of young love...she skillfully juxtaposes these romantic complications with the struggles of newfound wealth; family and friend conflicts; and each teen's internal wrestling with the past, present, and future." •VOYA "Windfall is about all of my favorite things • a girl's first big love, her first big loss, and her first big luck." •Jenny Han, New York Times bestselling author of To All the Boys I've Loved Before "Windfall is More Praise for Jennifer E. Smith "Hello, Goodbye, and Everything in Between is the love story of Clare and Aidan, high school sweethearts who spend one last day together before college separates them, possibly forever. It's also the love story of good friends, of home, of what used to be and what's to come. This latest stunner from Jennifer E. Smith will linger in your aching heart. (But it's a good ache. The best kind.) It's an ache that comes from characters who are so real they breathe, and a relatable story that generates feelings — lots of them — on every page." — Jennifer Niven, New York Times bestselling author of All the Bright Places

"Smith captures the romantic sparks that fly in unusual situations and the way love can build even when circumstances keep people apart. If you like your romances with a bit of European adventure, some New York glamour, and a lot of honest heart, The Geography of You and Me is for you." — E. Lockhart, New York Times bestselling author of We Were Liars

"A gorgeous, heartwarming reminder of the power of fate." — The New York Times Book Review on The Statistical Probability of Love at First Sight

Jennifer E. Smith is the author of seven novels for young adults, including The Statistical Probability of Love at First Sight. She earned a master's degree in creative writing from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland, and her work has been translated into thirty-three languages. She lives in New York City. Most of us have imagined winning the lottery at some point, but when 18 year old Alice buys a lottery ticket for friend Teddy, and it wins, their lives change forever. Teddy, Alice, and their friend Leo, high school seniors, navigate the world of millionaires, while trying to remain true to themselves. The characters are well-developed and the plot is plausible. This is my first novel by Jennifer E. Smith, but it won't be my last.

I loved this book! Everything about it. The writing flowed. The characters were complex and believable. The story, powerful. By the end of the book, I was crying tears of joy. More than that, I was feeling hopeful.

Didn't like it. Was too predictable & not what I was hoping for. Didn't care enough about any of the characters (and there are several) and they just weren't believable.

This was so fun to read! I keep picturing it as a movie, too! It was a quick read, with just enough romance, adventure, surprise, suspense and sadness to keep me on my toes. You'll love it!

Great book for getting young people to think about where they are going with their lives, and what is really important to them in the long run.

Great book!!

This author always knows how to write a great YA book and Windfall is no exception. Loved it!

Ever since I read The Statistical Probability of Love at First Sight, I've been a fan of Jennifer E. Smith. I am always happy to hear that she has a new book out. Her books are essentially teen friendship stories. There is usually a romance but it's not the main focus of the plot. There's very little darkness in her books. They are fun, reliably clean reads which I like to read and discuss with my daughter. Windfall in particular, with its plot about a teenager winning the lottery and how that win changed everything raised some really interestingly and fun things to talk about. There's a lot of food for thought in there about what family means, characters you'll like and root for, but who's choices you will not necessarily agree with. It's a propulsive, hard to put down, good read.
