Jill Kalz is the author of more than 60 titles for children, including the Tuckerbean beginning-reader series and the picture book Farmer Cap ("Pfeffernut County" series), finalist for a 2008 Minnesota Book Award and winner of the Readers' Choice Award and an AEP Distinguished Achievement Award. Kalz has also published poetry in the Nebraska Review, the Ohio Review, Cream City Review, and other magazines. Her short story "Last Call" was a runner-up for Minnesota Monthly's Tamarack Award. Kalz works as a children's book editor and lives in Minnesota. A complete list of her titles can be found at jillkalz.com or the Jill Kalz author page on Facebook.

This is very basic. If you don't know any German it's good and it does give you pronunciation so that is helpful but if you speak any basic German this won't help you increase your German knowledge

I found several errors just glancing through this book. The errors were in both grammar and poor translation of words. While there are good things about the book, overall I recommend choosing something different!

My husband is a German teacher and bought this to use in class. He had to print words and paste them in the book to correct 25 errors. The book was obviously written by someone who knows very little German (the title page lists the translator as "translations.com").
