Sergeant First Class Matt Larsen is a longtime trainer in survival and fighting techniques for the Army Rangers. A graduate of the multi-service SERE (Survival, Evasion, Rescue, and Escape) training program and of Jungle Survival Training in the Philippines and Okinawa, he served in the 75th Ranger Regiment for over twelve years, parachuting into Panama during the 1989 U.S. invasion and participating in the Gulf War.

This is an updated version of the now legendary Army 21-76 survival manual. This manual covers most anything that you would ever face in a survival situation. It probably does the best job of explaining the mental/psychological aspects of dealing with an emergency and how to cope properly with it. How to find water anywhere in the world. How to perform first aid for yourself and others. How to navigate using the stars and shadow stick methods and how to use your watch to determine direction. How to build shelters for the climate you find yourself in and how to make fire with various methods and how to hide it from enemy observation. How to make weapons and traps with what you find in the wilderness to catch animals for food. How to identify edible plants anywhere in the world and how plants in the right combination will meet all your nutritional needs even for the long term. How to also use medicinal plants to make remedies for many wounds and sicknesses. Also, you will learn about how to survive a nuclear blast and how to decontaminate yourself if you are exposed to radiation. How to procure food and water and how to make it safe to consume after a nuclear situation in your area. This survival manual covers nearly everything and is one of the most complete ever written. One of the things about the manual that I love is that it is simple and easy to follow and has no fancy pictures. It is very detailed and explains everything better than most manuals. It features line drawings that are clear and easy to understand. Jesus is your answer and God Bless You. Romans 10:9-10
