On January 21, 1983, 53 year old Emily Dotson lay dying of Systemic Lupus. Only 97 pounds, weak from years of illness, Mrs. Dotson had a word of knowledge from the Lord, and she chose to believe it. She obeyed the Lord and his word for her, and chose to believe that He would heal her of a condition her doctors had told her was invariably fatal. But Ms. Dotson chose the Lord's diagnosis over the doctor's, and then for the next year proclaimed her healing boldly and stood on the promise of God's scriptures for healing. A year later, she was examined by her doctors and there was no trace of Lupus in her bloodstream. Today, 2011, at 82 years old, Ms. Dotson tours the world telling others the glory of God and his abundant mercies. And yes, she is still free of Lupus. This is a wonderfully encouraging book. Ms. Dotson relates that what God did for her, he can also do for others, as he is no respecter of persons. Her writings teach the reader what she did to enable her healing to take place. Her courage in facing her illness and her unshakable faith in the Great Physician are two qualities that she believes are essential in healing. Without faith, she writes, Jesus could do no miracles in his hometown, but with faith, nothing with God is impossible. As a result of her miraculous healing, Ms. Dotson went on to become an evangelist herself, teaching others how to gain healing by speaking God's scriptures in faith. This was a personal transformation for her, as she was by nature shy and retiring. But the Lord renewed her mind and personality, and with faith and determination, Ms. Dotson became a powerful force for the Lord. I love reading about God's miracles. He still works miracles today, just as he did in the land of Israel nearly 2000 years ago. What I particularly enjoyed about this book is how Ms. Dotson shows how anyone can do the things she has done. She insists that there is nothing special about her, only that she decided to live and not die, and to live she had to choose to have faith in the Lord. speak verbally his promises, and then stand on those promises, despite her daily reality of illness from Lupus. Her healing so dramatically changed her, much like the changes seen by the Apostles after they received the gift of the Holy Spirit, that her life story stands as a modern-day testament what faith and the Lord can do. done

I originally bought Emily's book back in 2005 and I reread it in 2016. This powerful book of her healing testimony never gets old. I had the great pleasure of meeting her when she spoke at a church in Utica, MI around 2006 or 07. I have gone back to her book to enforce the healing I am believing in for my body. God's Word is true. God bless this lovely lady. Thank you Emily!

Emily's account of her miraculous healing from end-stage lupus, 20+ yrs. ago, is a testimony not just to the power & faithfulness of God, but even more to the power of faith to change hopeless situations using the unchanging Word of God as the basis for unwavering faith & tenacity. It increased my faith, my knowledge & my determination to receive what the Word of God says, not what I think, feel, or fear. A MUST read for anyone dealing with health issues!
