Customer Reviews

Written in an easy, free flowing fashion the book lightly touched on many areas of interest including: Rhodes being the largest medieval city in Europe, the aquarium around Dodecanese studying sea turtles and seals among other flora and fauna (sea turtles being one of my favorites) butterfly valley southwest of the capital being best observed between June until September (helpful info I appreciate) and lesser known info like 'Antony Quinn' beach being the place where some scenes from the film "The Guns of Navarone" were filmed. Photos and more details might have been nice, but with the images provided in my head by the author I'm charged up for a visit one day!

The book I just paid $3 for has exactly SIX pages about Rhodes. That's it. What a rip-off.
