American artist Nancy Chandler began creating unique maps, cards and gifts celebrating life in Thailand when she moved there in the late 1960s with her young family. Her unique style is characterized by the use of bright colors, humorous comments and witty insights, and the ability to make sense out of chaos when creating detailed market maps. Legendary in Asia but a quiet, unassuming artist in Northern California where she spent the last years of her life, Nancy was never a 'commercial' artist, preferring to work only on projects she loved. Sadly, she passed away in 2015 after a short illness. Her daughter and business partner Nima, who has been updating information on the maps for 20 years, continues her small publishing business in Bangkok.

my colleague at work, who is from Thailand, saw this and wanted one for herself Designed well but we didn't use it much. Better to get it online.

okay

Chaotic design makes it difficult to follow.

So informative & fun. A must-have for anyone spending any time in Bangkok. I have the 17th edition and needed a more current version. So glad to see its still being made.

The map is simply too crowded, and I think that to use numbers, that are cross referenced in The Directory would work better. At least for things other than the main attractions. But the map is useful.

This map is great- if not entirely overwhelming. Bangkok is such a huge city that it was hard to tell if you could walk between locations on the map or not.

More detail than other maps we found for Bangkok.
