Arnold Lobel (1933-1987) was the award-winning author and illustrator of many beloved children's books, including the classic I Can Read books about Frog and Toad, and the Caldecott Medal winning Fables. Arnold Lobel (1933-1987) was the award-winning author and illustrator of many beloved children's books, including the classic I Can Read books about Frog and Toad, and the Caldecott Medal winning Fables.

This production, great for younger listeners and new readers, includes two Lobel favorites--MOUSE TALES and MOUSE SOUP. In the first, Papa mouse tells his little mice seven stories (one for each mouse) in exchange for their promise to go to sleep when he's done. In the second, Mouse must talk his way out of becoming weasel soup. Both stories, for beginning readers, are read by author-illustrator Lobel, who does a wonderful job bringing their light and quirky humor to life. Listeners will enjoy his fatherly voice as he strolls through these simple but pleasing tales. J.C.G.

Santa gave this CD to my 6-yr old daughter along with a copy of the Mouse Tales book (doesn't come with the CD). She and her 4yr old sister love listening to a few stories as they fall asleep at night. It keeps them from getting out of bed to come visiting me downstairs. I have to be careful though because in some instances, I have found that it makes my little one stay awake to listen to the stories which defeats my purpose. However, I have started using it in the mornings too. They are allowed one story while they lie in bed waking up, but then have to get up and start getting dressed if they want to avoid me turning it off. It helps them get conscious in the morning because they want to hear the story. It has helped me get them moving and get them up on time. Cute stories and nice reading by Arnold Lobel. My girls love it.

Gentle reading of this classic tale by the beloved children's book author Arnold Lobel. The ability for children (and their parents and grandparents) to hear this story again and again through the unabridged audio CD after a parent, teacher or librarian has read the book is a calming activity. Books on CD allow a child to find a favorite storybook, load the CD with book in hand, sit down and enjoy the retelling at home. As they become beginning readers they can follow along with the text. Listening allows a quiet time of listening, looking at the illustrations, and a great alternative to too much TV viewing or video. Others have shared their comments on the value of this and other Arnold Lobel children's books. Don't forget to take along a few book/CDs on road trips for the whole family to listen to while driving.

So great! Read by the author. My 3 year old loves these! She could listen to these all day!

My three year old recently received an audio CD from a fast food chain, so I played it for her. She enjoyed it very much, problem was, it was pretty short. So I visited .com to find full length audio CDs. She loves this one. The author of the text also reads the stories. It begins with a father mouse telling one story per each of his seven mouse children as they get ready for bed. The stories are short enough to hold her attention and she really has to focus to hear the story being told and what happens as the next one starts. This is a great disc to take in the car, especially if you allow the kids to control the car radio. It is a great break from kiddie tunes!

When clam-ma or super mom can't be there to read him to sleep, these Mouse Tales fill the bill. It, too, is a collector's item he can keep for decades.

We got this last year for my four children (age 3-8). We listen to it in the car and at bedtime. They love it. My now 9 year-old is no longer interested, but the others get wrapped up in the stories. I think the author, Arnold Lobel, does a great job of reading the stories. They are captivating and fun.

My niece is disabled and listens to books on CD often at her school. She had a birthday coming and I asked her various things she wanted for her birthday and stories on CD was one that she answered yes to. I ordered a few different stories and she listened to this 3x in one day and many times since then. Great stories and the author is from one of her other favorites--Frog & Toad.

It was wonderful for the kids to wind down to these adorable stories. They arrived quickly and enjoyed immensely. Thank you
